

MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION: GENERAL BLENDED LEARNING FORMAT

Blended learning combines the best elements that classroom-based and online instruction have to offer. Students receive the face-to-face interaction of the classroom and the more in-depth dialogue among classmates that the online format facilitates. Plus, the professional networking aspect is enhanced as classmates form stronger bonds through the combined social aspects of the classroom and online environments.

Students in the blended format for the General MBA are required to attend three classroom-based classes at one of the specified Regis campuses (North Denver or DTC) during the course term; the remaining five weeks are completed exclusively online. This format will allow adult students greater flexibility when scheduling school around their work and life responsibilities.

BLENDED FORMAT ADVANTAGES:

- Combines the best elements of classroom-based and online learning formats
- Increased flexibility in scheduling classes around work and life
- Face-to-Face interaction with the instructor and classmates
- In-depth conversations in the online environment
- Networking is enhanced with both learning environments
- Great opportunity to explore online learning without being fully immersed in an online course
- Dedicated Regis support systems for both learning environments
